

MEXICAN LEADER VISITS GEN. PERSHING AT EL PASO; URGES U. S. DELAY INVASION

which were cut last night by Villa's men, were restored this evening.

REPORT BANDIT AT CALABANA.

Villa, Gonzales reports, is at Calabana, a town about twenty miles south-east of Corralton, where he was last previously reported.

Military men, both American and Mexican, had thought Villa was making for the great mountain chain of the Sierra Madre. Gen. Pershing, heading off Villa to the west, had said he believed Villa was trying to get into El Paso, which has enjoyed comparative peace and is filled with prosperous ranches.

But, apparently, finding his way blocked at Casas Grandes, the bandit gave up his announced intention of massacring the Mormons and took the easiest way out.

HEADED FOR MOUNTAINS.

Gen. Pershing said he believed Villa is now headed for the mountains of the Santa Ana district to the south of Calabana. This has long been Villa's headquarters, and he is believed to have food stores and munitions secreted there. To reach this place, Gen. Pershing said he would merely have to follow up the bed of the Santa Maria river, which he is said to have now reached.

ALARM AT EL PASO.

The appearance of provost guards, armed with rifles and carrying full ammunition belts, on the streets of El Paso as darkness came on only tended to increase the ever growing belief that the relations between the United States and the tottering rule of Carranza have reached a serious pass.

In Juarez, just across the river, Carranza military officials, who have been striving to suppress anti-American outbreaks among the garrisons and citizens, were relieved by news of the transfer of the army base from El Paso.

But in the minds of the Mexican soldiers themselves and those Mexicans who have declared that the "gringos" would never be permitted to pass through Juarez the information was received with smiles.

THINK U. S. IS AFRAID.

The typical Mexican contempt for the purposes and motives of the United States army, found outlet in general expressions of the belief that the army has been moved to Columbus through fear of the Carranza forces that could and would effectively resist an invasion through Juarez.

Citizens of El Paso are more than alarmed over the situation. There are almost as many Mexicans here as there are Americans and most of them are Villistas, who fled from Juarez when the town fell to the Carranzistas. Citizens are arming themselves. The management of the Sheldon hotel today packed two dozen Winchester rifles and distributed them at different places in the hotel, where they will be available for instant use.

EL PASO ASKS TROOPS.

The situation growing out of the withdrawal of the troops from here was deemed so serious that Mayor Thomas Lee wired to Congressman W. R. Smith in Washington. He asked the congressman to appeal to the war department for adequate forces for defense of El Paso. The county sheriff and police have sworn numbers of special deputies and policemen.

Almost the entire remaining force of the Seventh infantry which was brought from Fort Bliss and established in Casas Grandes, on the river bank opposite Juarez, were patrolling the streets of the city last night or were stationed at border points immediately north and south of the city limits.

CARRANZA MOVE MENACE.

Concern is felt here over rumors that 2,000 Carranza troops from Juarez are to join the forces of Gen. Pablo Bertoni, who is holding the Mexican border town of Las Palomas with a force of 800 Carranzistas.

Las Palomas is just across the border from Columbus. The mobilization of many troops there appears to be a move selected for the mobilization of the American forces was a matter that caused much concern in army circles and particularly among officers who are accustomed to take Mexican protestations of innocence with a grain of salt.

Cavalry, artillery, infantry, and aeroplane divisions arrived at the border town during the day, as well as large quantities of supplies for the men and horses. Work was under way on the erection of a bridge headquarters.

It was pointed out that every day's delay places Villa farther into the south, if the bandit chieftain has not decided to make a stand in the mountain fastnesses of his native district, that of Guerrero, in central Chihuahua.

Round Up All Mexicans.

The roundup of Mexicans in El Paso continues. It is the effort of the local police, with the concurrence of the military, that all Mexicans who are known to have had official military connections with any of the Mexican factions be placed under "close espionage." If not arrested where there is the slightest indication that they are using their presence in El Paso to further plans of American opposition south of the Rio Grande.

Among those now in custody are Gen. Manuel Bando, Gen. Manuel Medina-Villa, Rafael Martinez, and Juan Terrazas, all of whom have been staff officers under Villa. Others arrested are Jose Yumbel Robles, once Villa's minister of war; Carlos Arguilla, former member of Pancho's cabinet; and Santiago Delacasa.

SENATE DEFEATS PLAN TO PREPARE DEFENSES OF U. S.

Borah Effort Beaten and Myers
Water Power Bill Will Remain Special Business.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Washington, D. C., March 13.—(Special.)—Following a determined effort by Senator Borah of Idaho to have all legislation addressed so that work should be done by a vote of 50 to 25 late today the senate by a vote of 50 to 25 late today decided to make the Myers public lands water power bill the special business until it is disposed of.

The vote was the first between the preparedness and anti-preparedness forces. Party lines were broken both in the debate which preceded the roll call and on the roll call itself.

During the debate Senator Borah informed the senate that the United States is attempting to do something in Mexico which the best informed men in the United States know it is not prepared to do. He pleaded with the senate to waive all other considerations in order to prepare the country not only for the Mexican job but for the work which President Wilson said during his recent western trip it might be called upon to do in case it became involved in the European war.

Sharp Retort by Chamberlain.
Senator Myers of Montana and Vandenberg of Michigan replied to Senator Borah and asserted that the country is sufficiently well prepared either for Mexico or Europe. Senator Myers insisted there are 100,000 men in the army now ready to settle all difficulties with Mexico. This statement brought Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, chairman of the senate military committee, to his feet, with a hot retort.

"The army is scattered to the four winds," said Senator Chamberlain, "some of them are where it would take thirty days to bring them back to the United States, if they could leave their posts, and they can't leave. We have less than 25,000 men now available for duty in Mexico and we need many more times that number."

Says Senate Falls Duty.
"If the president of the United States is correct in the message which he carried to the people some weeks ago," said Senator Borah, "the congress of the United States is most definitely in duty in meeting a most momentous situation. We have been in session for three or four months and we have been varied from the beginning, in the graphic language of the president, that the confederation which is going on in Europe is sending its sparks constantly on to this hemisphere; and no man knows from one day to another what emergency this country will have to face with reference to this condition of affairs."

"We cannot shape these bills relating to preparedness in a week. If we do our duty, now is the time if we need the situation as it ought to be met. It will take not only days but weeks, and if it were properly disposed of it would take months to formulate and shape the policy of this country to meet a situation which has been so pronouncedly presented to the country by the president."

Wants of Greater Perils.
Senator Borah said he did not disapprove of the action which the president has taken with reference to permitting Villa and his band to enter the United States. He said the president was not only right but within his constitutional rights.

"I have been so anxious to see some act with reference to the protection of American rights in Mexico," he continued, "that I think I would be willing to compromise with a constitutional question, even, if I thought it were involved."

"But while I concede the president would have performed his duty in that respect, no man knows the consequences which may follow or flow from that act. No one can measure the probabilities which may arise from the fact that we are now invading Mexico, although for the purpose of arresting and punishing those who have taken the lives of American citizens and that alone. The difficulty is that we may have started a train over which we cannot exercise control, and whatever the consequences may be, we are under the most solemn obligations to be prepared to meet them."

Myers Confident of Result.
Senator Myers of Montana called Senator Borah's attention to the fact that there are no preparedness measures before the senate for its consideration now. "As far as the situation in Mexico is concerned," continued Senator Myers, "we have, I believe, 100,000 troops in our regular army besides all of the national guard upon which to fall back. We have at least one of the foremost navies of the world. If these resources are not sufficient to capture a few bandits in Mexico, or to meet whatever emergency may arise in the Caribbean or which may come up in the approaching seasons down there, I think there is very little use in providing a larger army and navy."

"We were in war with Mexico once. This country has had one war with Mexico and all the South American countries did not rally to the aid and defense of that country. I have no fear of anything of that kind occurring now. I do not believe the people of this country

FORCE ON BORDER HAS FULL SUPPLY OF MACHINE GUNS

Number Sufficient for Mexican Needs, Army Men Believe; Plan to Get More.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Washington, D. C., March 13.—(Special.)—Army men decline to consider seriously any suggestion that the present forces on the border have not an ample supply of machine guns, field pieces and ammunition for any possible requirements of the coming campaign.

The total supply of machine guns is 1,047. Most of these are at coast points. Each regiment is granted four guns under regulations and is granted an extra one by custom, so that in the twenty-five complete regiments of cavalry and infantry now on the border there are 123 machine guns. The supplies at the coast are not constant. Within a few months an improved machine gun will be available and will gradually, it is thought, replace the others.

It is not generally known that so recent $500,000 in the 1915 budget was made in behalf of machine guns. This was due to the determination of the judges that the new model, not yet ready for manufacture, was superior.

The government plants can make only the absurdly small number of 200 a year, but private plants have developed a capacity of several thousand per month under the influence of foreign war orders.

Private Plants Needed.
For machine guns as for rifles the government would be forced to rely on private manufacturers or else heavily to operating time. Present rifle capacity is 215,000 per year—at Springfield and Rock Island arsenals and there are some 700,000 rifles in stock today.

The ratio of existing field guns to needed field guns is about the same as in the case with the machine guns, the army staff estimating the need of 2,040, or about 16 per 1,000 infantry and cavalry. We now have 225 batteries of four guns each.

The better equipment program has been urged for several years, mainly through the cable board of 1911, whose recommendations were strengthened greatly by the Treat board recommendations.

Raise Artillery Support.
For example, the proposed artillery support, which had been 3.6 per 1,000 men, was raised to 4.9 per 1,000 men. The six inch howitzer was raised to eleven inches and then to sixteen inches. The ammunition reserve for the 3.2 inch gun was raised from 1,500 to 5,000 per piece.

Smoot Points to Task.
Senator Smoot of Utah followed Senator Chamberlain.

"Allow me to suggest," he said, "that Mexico today has more field guns than the United States. I think Mexico today is better prepared with ammunition than the United States. I do not believe we ought to allow a statement to go out uncontradicted that we have 100,000 men. The senator knows that, if I remember correctly, the total we have is 38,000. We have about 10,000 in the Hawaiian islands; we have them in the Philippine islands; we have them distributed all over places we have to defend, and I agree with the senator from Oregon that we cannot today under the present situation put more than 25,000 men on the Mexican border."

WANT TO GO TO MEXICO? JOIN NATIONAL GUARD

Law Requires U. S. to Call Out Militia Before Asking for Volunteers.

(BY CAPT. HENRY J. REILLY, Washington, D. C., March 13.—(Special.)—As an incident that probably will be of the greatest importance to the country, the law requires that the United States must first call out the militia before asking for volunteers.

This makes a force of approximately 80,000 infantry, cavalry, and artillery, and attached troops, such as the signal corps, engineers, hospital and quartermaster corps. As the militia is probably cannot be spared from the coast defenses, because of the possibility of European complications, we must turn to the national guard if more troops should be needed. If they should not prove sufficient, then we would have to raise entirely green, untrained volunteer regiments.

Unless the force sent after Villa immediately captures him, which seems very doubtful, or unless the administration withdraws the invading force for fear of war with all Mexico, it seems certain that the time will soon arrive when, due to an insufficiency of regular troops, the national guard will have to be called into the service of the United States. Should Carranza be overthrown, or should he take action against us, this time is certain to arrive.

Organization of Guard.
At the present time the national guard is organized into twelve infantry divisions, the fifth to sixteenth, inclusive, the numbers one to four being reserved for the regular army.

This organization in general is a paper one, as the majority of divisions are lacking in many of the essentials, such as cavalry, artillery, signal, engineer, and hospital corps troops. Also none of them has ever been really mobilized and maneuvered as a division.

One of these lacks two regiments of infantry, having, but seven instead of nine. Only two of them have the prescribed quota of cavalry, one regiment. Only one of them has the proper amount of field artillery. They are all lacking in the auxiliary services, while none of them has a complete medical service.

The actual strength is 140,000. This is less than the number they should have to bring the organizations to the peace strength prescribed for the regular army. Should they be recruited to this strength they would number approximately 145,000.

Would Need Volunteers.
To raise the unit to a war strength and to give the divisions the necessary number of organizations would necessitate the raising of approximately 25,000 men as the war strength should be about 165,000. As the present strength of the guard is 140,000, the difference of 25,000 men would have to be made up by volunteers.

As many of the men have business and family interests which they naturally would not feel like sacrificing in a lesser war with Mexico would be a considerable number of these now in the service would not volunteer, with the result that more than 15,000 new men are needed.

It all existing organizations are to be called out at peace strength, and more than 250,000 if the twelve divisions are to be completed and turned out at a war strength.

If volunteers are to be called for it is so hoped that all existing national guard organizations which volunteer, and undoubtedly all of them will, will be called to war strength before any new organizations are accepted. The present is an excellent opportunity for men who would enlist should we have war with Mexico to get some preparation ahead of time by enlisting in the national guard now.

Mobilization Points in West.
Mobilization points have already been determined upon. The Illinois national guard, which belongs to the Twelfth division, would be assembled at Springfield, while the Indiana national guard, which makes up the balance of the Twelfth division, would be assembled at Fort Benjamin Harrison, just outside of Indianapolis.

The Eleventh division is made up of the Michigan guard, with Grayville as the mobilization point, and the Ohio guard with Columbus for the same purpose. The Thirteenth division is made up of the Wisconsin guard, mobilization point Camp Douglas; the Minnesota guard mobilization point Fort Snelling; the North Dakota guard mobilization point Fort Lincoln; the South Dakota guard mobilization point Rapid; and the Iowa guard mobilization point Des Moines.

The Fourteenth division is made up of the Missouri guard, mobilization, Nevada. The Kansas guard mobilization point Fort Riley; the Nebraska guard mobilization point Lincoln; the Colorado guard mobilization point Golden; and the Wyoming guard mobilization point Cheyenne.

As the law requires the national guard to be called out the guard before calling for any other troops, the quickest way to go to Mexico, outside of going in the regular service, is to go into the national guard.

WE'RE ALL READY, MR. WILSON, TO GET AFTER VILLA

Regulars and Militia Anxious to Move South Across Border; Eager to Entrain Now.

With supplies and equipment loaded on cars and ready for immediate departure, four troops of regular United States cavalry and a machine gun troop are waiting impatiently at Fort Sheridan for orders from Washington which will send them to the Mexican border.

Tuesday Brig. Gen. Henry McCain, adjutant of the army, sent a message to the effect that the men would not be called until there came a demand for their services from Maj. Gen. Funston on the border.

First troops from the central department, with Chicago as its headquarters, are now on their way to the Mexican border. Two troops from Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, entrained just before 10 o'clock Sunday night.

I. W. G. Is Eager. Meanwhile detachments of the Illinois National Guard are preparing to answer any call for volunteers which may come from the national government at Washington. Gov. Dunne and Adj. Gen. Frank A. Dickson, I. W. G., conferred with Col. Daniel A. Frederick, commander of the central department, yesterday. Gen. Dickson and Gov. Dunne leave for Washington today.

Orders to send 700,000 rations of meat to Maj. Gen. Funston's forces on the border were received yesterday by Col. A. D. Kinkaid, acting quartermaster of the central department. The shipment was sent out last night. Included in the order are 340,000 rations of corned beef, 30,000 rations of bacon, 150,000 rations of pork and beans, and 20,000 rations of corned beef hash. A ration is enough meat for one day's supply for one man.

80 Recruits for Cavalry. More than thirty recruits appeared at the first cavalry armory last night. This, according to Col. Milton J. Foreman, is nothing unusual since the beginning of the preparedness campaign. The regular Monday meeting of the officers of the regiment also was held last night. Col. Foreman announced that he had heard nothing from Washington as to the likelihood of volunteers being called.

Efforts will be made at a meeting Friday evening in the lobby of the Insurance Exchange building to organize a new field company of the signal corps. The recruiting of men will be done under the direction of Capt. Lloyd Canby and Lieut. John A. Van Leer.

The men behind the movement have been sending wireless messages from the border pavilion at the stockyards. They are inviting all wireless operators, former signal guardsmen, and men interested in telephone and signal work to attend Friday's meeting.

The second battalion of field artillery, 1st B., manned by college men, is preparing to entrain for the Mexican border within twenty-four hours.

"We are completely equipped," said Maj. Charles Vincent at the headquarters yesterday. "We are recruited up to war strength and our only lack is horses. Arrangements have been made to procure horses on twenty-four hours' notice."

Ready to Entrain. Besides the three battalions in the second battalion a third skeleton battalion is already recruited up to peace strength. These men will be ready to entrain as soon as equipment arrives from the federal armory.

Steps also are being taken in Chicago to provide aursas. According to J. J. O'Connor, director of the central division of the Red Cross, that organization has 30 aursas in Chicago subject to call and nearly 5,000 more in other parts of the country. Many society women have taken examinations for Red Cross emergency duty.

Business men of Evanston will gather in the city hall of the suburb tonight to plan the organization of volunteer detachments for military training.

On the strength of this I shall not certify the candidates who have expressed a preference for Roosevelt."

Mr. McGrath replied by wire immediately as follows: "Many thanks."

Speaker Cannot Attend Meeting in St. Louis Because of Duties in Washington.

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Speaker Champ Clark will not be a delegate to the Democratic national convention at St. Louis next June. He announced today that it would be impossible for him to act as a delegate, because the house probably would be in session at convention time. Under the rules he cannot appoint an acting speaker for more than one day except in case of illness.

ILLINOIS ARMY READY TO START WHEN EQUIPPED

Gov. Dunne Asserts He Will Not Let Government Neglect Troops as in 1898.

Illinois troops will go forward at the first call for volunteers. They will be mobilized and transferred into the federal service just as rapidly as the federal government can muster in, subside, and equip the Illinois regiments.

This was the statement of Gov. Dunne last night as he was departing for Washington.

Government Informed. "The federal government knows through its annual inspections, one of which is just being completed, of the exact strength and equipment of the Illinois National guard," Gov. Dunne said. "The war department is informed to a blank and a tent peg of what is now available at Springfield for purposes of mobilization."

"I am going to Washington, but not to make a tender of the Illinois National guard. That has been done already by the officers and men of the Illinois National guard."

Trip to Capital. "It is a coincidence that Adj. Gen. Dickson and myself are traveling to the capital just now. I shall speak in Philadelphia, and I expect to go on to Washington to seek a reopening of the waterway affair before the new secretary of war."

Adj. Gen. Dickson goes to Washington to try to make an arrangement for a regimental encampment of the respective regiments of the Illinois National guard at Fort Sheridan, where the school was held last summer.

Equipment Question. "I will say," Gov. Dunne answered, "that the Illinois National guard is on a peace footing. It has been equipped on a peace footing, and I understand that it is so equipped. That is a matter for the war department to determine whenever a decision shall have been reached to make a call for volunteers from the national guard, if such a call shall be made."

"So far as the state of Illinois is concerned, if now possesses every ounce of equipment that could be secured from the federal government under the laws, statutes, and army regulations. I should say that no state National guard is more substantially equipped than that of Illinois."

"Illinois will furnish all of the men that are required under any emergency. Of that I am sure. The proof lies in the flood of national guard enlistments, the proffer of extra regiments, and the spirit that has been manifested through the newspapers all over the state."

Lesson of 1898. "Illinois learned a lesson in 1898, however," Gov. Dunne said. "We will answer every requirement. We will do all that is asked."

"But," Gov. Dunne recalled the history of the April camp at the state fair grounds in 1898, the typhoid fever epidemic that trailed the Illinois boys to Chickamauga, Washington, and Tampa. "The Illinois volunteers of 1916 will go into mobilization camps, tented, blanketed, warmed, and fed, or not at all. That is a matter for the federal government to determine."

GERARD MAY GIVE UP POST. Ambassador to Germany Coming Home and Probably Will Not Return to Berlin.

REGISTER TODAY

If You're Not on the Books, This Is Your Chance.

REGISTRATION today is the chief local political topic. All men and women who want to vote at the aldermanic elections April 4 and who are not properly registered may become so today. Anybody who registers today may vote in the fall primaries provided he or she doesn't move in the meantime. If a legal voter has moved since he last voted and desires to vote at the aldermanic election on April 4 he must register today.

The forecast at the office of the board of election commissioners was that 55,000 names would be added to the registration books today, bringing the total to 770,000.

John D. Shoop, superintendent of schools, sent the following notice yesterday to all principals: "An important factor in the training of children in the duties of citizenship consists in creating a deeper interest in the elective franchise."

"The schools can serve as a helpful agent in civic life by accentuating the importance of the election and registration days and by requesting the children to ask their parents not to neglect their duties as citizens on these occasions. It is needless to ask that this should be done in an impersonal and impartial manner, with special reference to the interests of any candidate or any party."

Manitoba Dry BY 2 TO 1 VOTE

Electors Approve Act Closing Bars—Crusade Covers the Whole Dominion.

Winnipeg, Man., March 13.—By a vote of slightly more than 2 to 1, the province of Manitoba today approved the provincial temperance act, which closes all bars, wholesale liquor houses, and licensed clubs in the province after May 31 next.

Under the provisions of the act liquor may still be imported for private personal consumption and its manufacture within the province for export is permitted.

Want It Dominion-Wide. Further prohibition rests with the dominion government alone, and as the next night endorsed a resolution calling on Sir Robert Borden and his government at Ottawa to introduce a dominion-wide prohibition act.

Complete returns were not available tonight, especially from the rural districts, where heavy snows have interfered with traffic. Winnipeg voted the "drys" a majority of 4,468 out of a total vote of 23,876. Early in the evening the "wets" had declared they expected to carry the city.

Republicans Elect Mayors. Portland, Me., March 13.—Four out of the five city elections in Maine today were won by the Republicans. The only Democratic success was in Biddeford, where Leopold A. Girard was chosen. The successful Republican mayors are Blaine S. Fitts in Augusta, John F. Woodman in Bangor, Frank H. Nickerson in Brewer, and William K. Keene in Belfast.

Des Moines Favors MacVicar. Des Moines, Ia., March 13.—John MacVicar, one of the originators of the Des Moines plan of commission government, combined at the Des Moines primary today. He polled 9,407 votes, while the next best was Lewis E. Royal with 2,413. They will be the candidates for mayor at the election March 27. The primary was nonpartisan.

JUDGE SCORNS WOMEN, BLIND TO BOYS' NEEDS

Says Time Wasted on Golf Might Be Used for Wayward Lads.

Thomas F. Scully, judge of the County court, last evening scored women who waste their time playing golf while they allowed boys to sleep in boxes, under sidewalks, and in empty freight cars with no one to care for them.

He spoke on the "Boy Problem" at an open meeting of the Holy Name society of the Holy Angels Roman Catholic church, Oakwood boulevard and Vincennes avenue.

"I do not want to criticize the Knights of Columbus," he said. "I am only telling you what I have told them. They build magnificent clubhouse in which to entertain themselves but they close their doors to homeless boys."

Praise for Mundelein. "Our new archbishop intends to do something for the boys who are first offenders. Instead of building a few more marble churches, he is going to do something for the boys who need help the most, and he has asked the Knights of Columbus to assist."

"There are too many policemen who delight in bringing into court every boy offender they find on the street corner. They ought to treat the boys more as they would their own boys."

"All that many boys need is for some one to say 'Hello' to them and give them a job. What is needed is not more ways to punish crime, but more ways to prevent crime. The poolrooms are all bad. There are no old swimming holes and few open lots where they can play ball. We ought to have the school buildings, parochial and public, open all of the time."

Women Are Needed. "We need more women of ordinary means who can help care for the boys. You can't take women from the Lake Shore drive, no matter how well intentioned they may be, and have them accomplish much good in the Polish and Italian districts or where other tongues are spoken."

"Chicago has the only public defenders' society and the best psychopathic hospital in the world, but what we need is more unselfish people."

LORIMER TRIAL ON TODAY. JUDGE DEVER PRESIDING.

Politician, Accused of Conspiracy and Embellishment Which Led to Bank Failure, Faces Jury.

After delays totaling two weeks because of the illness of Judge Dever, the actual trial of William Lorimer on charges of conspiracy and embellishment resulting from the failure of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank and allied banks and enterprises will begin this morning in the Criminal court.

After the swearing of the jury Albert Pink, counsel for Lorimer, will ask the prosecution to furnish him with the list of alleged conspirators not named in the indictment. Lawyers for the state declared the list will be the same as the one furnished the defense in the trial of Charles B. Munday at Morris last fall.

Assistant State's Attorney William H. Holly then will begin his opening statement of the case for the prosecution. Tomorrow morning Mr. Pink will make the opening statement for the defense.

KOLYNOS

A Reasonable Precaution To Take In Times of Grip Epidemic

In season of a widespread epidemic such as now obtains, every reasonable precaution should be taken to avoid acquiring or distributing disease.

A fundamental precaution is to keep the mouth and throat in a condition of ideal cleanliness.

This is obtained by the habitual use of Kolynos Dental Cream, which destroys masses of microbes in the process of cleansing the teeth, and places the mouth for a time in a state unfavorable to their rapid redevelopment.

Do not imagine that Kolynos can cure influenza. At the first intimation of infection you should instantly consult your physician, but keep your mouth in so healthful a condition that he will not need to chide you for being regardless of one of the chief rules of personal sanitation.

HOYNE SHAKES BONES IN CLOSET OF MIKE GALLERY

Brings Up Charge 23 Years Old That Money Vanished in His Possession.

file of THE TRIBUNE under date of Nov. 18, 1908. There a story appeared with an opening paragraph like this: "Police Officer Michael J. Gallery is locked up at the Central station charged with robbing Edmund Boer, of 4856 Indiana avenue of $4,000. Gallery was arrested and $3,675 was recovered. Gallery declares he does not know where the rest of the cash is."

There followed the details of an attempt to blackmail Boer or Etienne Boer, as his name appeared in the indictment. He was a retired jeweler, at one time in business at Superior avenue and Clark street. A 14-year old boy, Eddie Dillon, told his father, a waiter, that Boer had committed a serious offense against him. A warrant was taken out but never served. At the office of Attorney D. D. O'Brien Boer offered to compromise for $3,000, but $4,000 was demanded.

Go to Get Money. Dillon had hired a Pinkerton man to watch Boer during the daytime and made an arrangement to have Gallery watch him at night. It was Gallery who went with the old man to the Illinois Trust and Savings bank to withdraw the money to silence Dillon.

"Instead of bringing Boer back to O'Brien's office," proceeded the story in THE TRIBUNE of 1908, "Gallery took him and his $4,000 to 3043 Butler street, the office of his own boss. Here, Boer was asked the office for a bit of string to tie around the bundle of bills. Gallery took the package and opened it.

"My," he said, "that's more money than I ever saw before."

Seemingly he handed him, for he balanced the package in his hand for a few minutes and then tossed the whole package through an open door into a bedroom. Then he locked the door. Boer says he attempted to follow his money, but Gallery drew a revolver and drove him out of the house.

Details of Recovery. Boer wandered around and finally returned to O'Brien's office and said he had been robbed. Shortly afterward Gallery came in. He was asked where the money was and said he didn't know; that he wasn't aware there was money in the package and supposed the old man had lost it. He was finally advised to go out and find the money. Meanwhile Attorney O'Brien went to inform Inspector Shea, and Detective Cousins was sent to Gallery's house, but before the officer returned Gallery himself walked into O'Brien's office, and laying down a package, said: "There's the money."

There was a shortage of $225, according to Boer, but the story said Gallery denied emphatically that he could account for the shortage.

Statement by Gallery. In his statement at night Gallery said that Boer was indicted five months later on the testimony of a second boy; that he was held to the grand jury and jumped his bonds. He said the larceny case against himself had hung fire more than a year and then he read in the newspapers that it had been dropped because of the complainant's disappearance.

Mr. Hoyne challenged Gallery to deny his charges, and said all the four promotions, except that of Lieut. Joseph C. Mullin, had been illegal because the regular civil service procedure had not been completed when they were ordered. Then he added this:

"Do the appointments of Lieuts. Gallery, Russell, and Westbrook represent a 'kick-in'—a proposition of having to come across with money? I have received information that the promotions of the three persons were bought and paid for. My assistants are busy now checking up these reports, and if I find them to be true, Chief of Police Healey probably will have something to think about."

Denial by Fleming. Edward J. Fleming, secretary of the state's attorney, denied he had any grievance against Gallery, and he had ever entered into any "combine" to oust him from the police department.

Gallery would naturally have something to say after the charge made against him, by Mr. Hoyne," said Mr. Fleming.

"About the time this safe blowing job was pulled off I was a kid rucking stick candy and had never heard of him or Capt. Levin. I am related to the wife, but I have not seen Capt. Levin more than four times in the last year and never once mentioned the name of Gallery."

"The only time I ever saw Gallery was about a year ago. I don't know Mr. Gallery, and I don't care to get acquainted with him."

Healey Reply to Hoyne. Chief Healey was asked first what action he would take in Gallery's case. He said the civil service procedure necessary for his promotion had not been completed and that he might withhold further action until he has investigated. Then he

"After Twenty-Three Years" They Try to Get Mike Gallery

"CONGRATULATIONS, isn't it? Or maybe it's commiserations you're meanin'?" The little taste of success is bitter in my mouth, and it would be a happier heart under me coat if I was workin' in the streets than a captain under such circumstances!"

If fancy can fit such a descriptive term as broken-hearted to a huge vigorous man who, plus a few military trappings, would be your picture of a cavalier, then Capt. Mike Gallery was a broken-hearted man as he arose from the chair in his new office after hearing of the old charges which had been resurrected to his discredit. There was no sag to the shoulders, and no weakness in the big muscular voice, but his face whitened, as if with physical pain, and the smile seemed to stick halfway.

"After twenty-three years," he said, as it to himself. "Well, it's here, and as there's no law against 'humility' and 'humiliation' I will have to stand up. But my wife and family are the ones that will suffer in this effort to disgrace me! Can you tell me, in heaven's name, what are men's hearts made of to bring up a charge like that, twenty-three years after?"

"Such a shallow grave for a calumny is twenty-three years, and a thousand would be no deeper, if the ghosts knew where to dig. It would be a crime of the heart to bring up a charge like that, if it was true, after a man had come along straight for so long, but what is it when the whole tale was a lie to start with? I don't know."

Divested of his dialect, Lieut. Mike's story continues: "Twenty-three years ago—and this is the story—I was living with my wife at 3043 Butler street. I was a patrolman, and I had a warrant for the arrest of Etienne Boer, a retired jeweler, on a serious charge. When he learned that I had the warrant he came to my home,

"I remember he was carrying his coat over his arm, and he laid it on a lounge in my home."

"I set out to take him to his lawyer's office, and it was not until we reached there that he mentioned he had left a package containing $4,000 on the sofa at my house. He intimated that I knew something about it. I paid no attention to his story because I thought he had made it up to get away or something. I took him to the detective bureau, and he began shouting that I had stolen the package, thinking to give it to me later."

"Detectives got the package from Malone, and it was counted at the bureau. Boer made the charge that it was $325 short and accused me of taking it. I got into an altercation with Boer, I was so angry, and as a result I was stripped of my star and dismissed from the department. Later I was indicted. But I never got a dollar of dishonest money in my life. When the case came up in court Boer could not be found and it was pronounced. I afterwards tried to find him, but he fled to Switzerland and never returned. And that is what I am having reserved to me after twenty-three years."

"The men who are responsible for this job are Eddie Fleming and Mike Sullivan, leader in the Eighteenth ward. Fleming has been after me because his uncle, Paddy Levin, is my enemy. I think Mayor Thompson is too big a man to let them throw me out of this job and disgrace me and my family."

"I didn't seek this captaincy, but by G— I don't want to relinquish it in disgrace."

"To scores of persons who stopped him to shake his hand and congratulate him as he passed through the city hall, Capt. Gallery responded with thanks, and the significant addition: 'I don't know whether it's congratulations or commiserations.'"

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY PLAN OF WEST SIDE CAMPAIGN.

Garfield Park Group Co-operating Distributes 25,000 Invitations for from March 19 to Easter.

Twenty-one west side churches, known as the Garfield park group, are co-operating in promoting a go-to-church campaign which is to have its culmination on Easter, according to a report made yesterday to the publicity committee of the general committee on evangelism of the Chicago church federation, which met for lunch at Marshall Field's.

"The Garfield park group of churches distributed 25,000 cards of invitation," said the Rev. C. A. Gege, pastor of the Olive Methodist Episcopal church. "The cards contained an invitation to make from March 12 to Easter a period of special church going. The names of the twenty-one churches and their locations were all printed on the back of the card."

"We seek confidence; we seek to be trusted. We have no secrets. We are the energy providers of Chicago. We are a quasi-public organization, performing a useful community service, for doing which we are permitted to retain a moderate profit. We have made a study of the economics of energy supply and have demonstrated the great economies that can be effected by monopoly in production and distribution under intelligent direction. But no public-utility monopoly should be permitted to exist without public regulation; and we accept unreservedly the principle of regulation, assuming, of course, that the regulation shall be just. Beyond this, we need public support—not public suspicion or even public indifference, but loyalty to a Chicago institution."

As we see it, it is not too much to say that if the real significance of the economics of the supplying of energy were understood thoroughly, every thoughtful citizen would be a volunteer business solicitor for this company. If our procedure is economically sound, and if the people are convinced that we are not overpaid for our agency in doing the work, then our electricity supply becomes a community affair, in which all members of the community have a real interest.

"Taxation without representation is tyranny," declared the pre-Revolution American patriots. That seemed a principle that must appeal to any fair-minded man. It seems equally clear today that regulation of a public utility without protection—protection against competition, against unfair attack—is unjust. We hope that recognition of that fact is embedded in the public consciousness as well as in the principles of equity.

You owe it to us, then, as we think, to give some heed to these problems of energy supply, and to give us your hearty support in the effort to make usable energy still cheaper in the future.

"The Electrical Era" will be the subject of the next advertisement, to appear in this paper on Tuesday, March 21st.

What the War and One Man Have Done

In this City, and in every city of America, business men are learning certain truths from the war—truths which could be learned in no other manner, however unpleasant it may be to have to admit it.

As a result of the war, new discoveries, new inventions are coming in this generation.

A month now sees more mechanical progress than a decade did in the past.

In no field of industrial activity has there been greater progress than in the field of motor truck transportation.

The World War is a gasoline war—a motor truck period. There never was a time when motor trucks were more widely appreciated than now.

America is becoming the World's Workshop.

As competition grows keener, greater economies become necessary.

Competition breaks away from clever salesmanship to the higher ground of quality and service.

The Industrial World never needed more than it does today the services of a motor truck designer capable of applying his science to the problems of modern business.

An engineer with practical experience who not only believes but knows that he is right.

Among all the automobile engineers of America, the one man who has made the deepest study of the motor truck needs of the business world is A. L. Riker, Vice-President and Chief Engineer of the Locomobile Company of America.

Mr. Riker is pioneer designer of motor vehicles in America.

He designed the first Locomobile 4-cylinder car in 1902.

He designed the Locomobile Racing Car—the first American-built car to win the Vanderbilt Cup.

He was the first President of the Society of Automobile Engineers, and was chosen by his fellow experts of the Society to represent them in the United States Naval Consulting Board, of which he is Chairman of the Committee on Internal Combustion Motors.

Fifteen years ago, and in the infancy of the automobile art, Mr. Riker designed and built motor trucks which are still in service.

A. L. Riker's latest achievement is the new Riker Motor Truck, a war tested truck, a truck developed from the lessons of the war, made by the Locomobile Company of America—unquestionably and incontestably the best built truck in America.

It is a noteworthy fact that trucks built by Mr. Riker fifteen years ago are still in service.

It shows that Mr. Riker was able to foresee the peculiar strains that were bound to be imposed on motor trucks in unsparing service.

It shows Mr. Riker's standards of quality in the choice of materials.

Today, backed by all the tremendous advances in the art of making special metals for special services, the Locomobile Company of America brings out the new Riker Motor Truck.

Here is a frame of pressed chrome nickel steel, which costs about 20 cents a pound—as against the 8 cent structural steel used in the frames of most trucks.

Here is an engine bed of bronze ("Government specification bronze" is the technical name) instead of the aluminum ordinarily used.

The Riker Motor Truck has the only bronze engine bed ever put into a truck.

Here are springs of silico manganese steel.

Here are transmission gears of chrome nickel steel—propeller shaft of chrome nickel steel—driving axles of chrome nickel steel.

The Riker Truck is the best built truck in America.

There is more high grade material in the Riker Motor Truck than in any other truck built in America.

Mr. Riker's choice of materials and his method of using them make the Riker Motor Truck not only stronger, more dependable, and safer, but lighter as well.

A Riker Truck will go further, carry heavier loads, do its work with less tire cost, less upkeep and depreciation than any other truck of the same rated capacity.

The price is about the same.

Engineers, Industrial Men, Superintendents of Delivery, Traffic Managers, Students of Technical Schools and Colleges, are invited to inspect the new Riker Motor Truck now on display at our Branch House in this city, and see Mr. Riker's application of engineering principles to motor truck design in America.

GERMANY FACES GRAVE PROBLEM IN FOOD LACK

Government Fixes Prices and Perfects Substitutes to Conserve Supply.

By Carolyn Wilson.

Although the substitution and invention of various forms of raw material has lessened the problem of food shortage in Germany, the government still remains the most important factor in the food problem.

I had a full and lengthy statement from the first of the kind to be given out from a high German official whom I am not permitted to name, regarding the present situation and task of Germany concerning food.

I had this with me on the Rotterdam in its original typewritten form and although the British officers at Falmouth guard it with a more than usual care, I was able to read German—it, and most of my other important notes were taken on the boat the third day out.

The fifth day out Mr. F. F. Foote of Cress, Erie, Pa., had his passport and a large bundle of business correspondence and notes taken from his room; also, and the time the captain refused to allow a note to be posted, saying the things had probably blown out of his pocket overnight on the sea deck.

Notes Lost on Boat.

The first, however, remains that my chief, most reliable, and most recent source of information regarding the food and fodder situation in Germany, from what notes I have, from my memory of the conversations with various German friends, as well as from personal observation of the prices, I shall try to show the difficulties under which Germany is laboring.

The harvests of 1912, 1913, and 1914 were 12 million, 17.2 million, and 14.6 million tons, respectively. The harvest for 1915, estimated as higher than this, was then placed in June at 10.3 million tons, and this was later found to be slightly too high. Consequently it was necessary to reduce the bread ration.

It was vital to economize at least 200,000 tons reserve beyond the estimated need up to August, until the slowest provinces could have harvested their crops, some not ripe until late in September.

Crop Shortage Made Up.

Mr. Michaelis, undersecretary of state, "four states with the greatest pressure on account of the provisions we have had not only the shortage which had already been consumed in readiness but there is also an expectancy that the reserve will be somewhat larger than we had hoped. But the quality of the crops this year was especially poor. We have to use during the war all grain for feeding our people, even that which on account of its poor quality had been used for fodder."

There have been in force for a long time the percentage of white flour to be used in bread, the times and places for baking, the use of government controlled mills, and the careful rationing.

Beyond this by adding more nourishing artificial properties most of the poorer grades, formerly used for fodder, have been made fit for human consumption.

Tagetes, manioc, potato, corn and soybeans are all being used in large quantities, particularly the latter, which is as rich in fat as carbohydrates.

Fodder Shortage Is Serious.

Now comes the serious question of food, which is inextricably interwoven with the shortage and high cost of meat, and the shortage of potatoes.

During the first winter of the war the people found they had overestimated their potato supply. In their anxiety to conserve they began killing off the pigs to save feeding them their potatoes as fodder.

Consequently pigs became scarce. The government put a price limit on potatoes and that price limit was so much less than most forms of fodder that farmers prefer feeding their animals the surplus of their potato supply to selling the potatoes and buying other fodder.

On account of the expense of feeding cattle, the farmers naturally demand higher prices, which has led to a great deal of criticism that the farmer is using the war and the national food shortage to enrich himself. Just at present the farmer does not stand in high favor with the ordinary people.

Discover Fodder Substitutes.

The import for the year 1915 in fodder was 1,418,372 tons. Consequently, as nearly all home fodder was being turned into the bread supply, the government was compelled to find some substitute.

At present they have succeeded with great success, and also by artificial treatment of straw, partly by cooking, partly by chemical addition of sugar, molasses, and starch they have produced a remarkable animal food. Likewise they have had success with heather. All remnants of the stock yards, dead animals, as well as horses killed at the front, are used to form the albumen percentage so necessary to animal fodder.

Price limits have been set during the last month on imported pork and ham. Up to that time a high limit had been put on only home grown products. Consequently they sold the meat at the foreign price, and made a large percentage. Now, however, it is forbidden to sell native and imported pork in the same shop. The prices in marks, equal to 23 cents, for imported pork are as follows:

Per lb.	Per lb.
Best cuts 2.10	Pig legs 1.20
Second cuts 2.50	Head 1.00

The prices for home produced pork are:

Vegetables Prices Limited.

This same trouble concerns vegetables, on which a price limit has been set only for the native produce. Now, however, a tax has been imposed on the import and also price limits.

An effort is being made to induce the government to repeal the law regarding space to be given over to the cultivation of sugar beets, which are considered so essential. "There is undoubtedly a shortage in this line for new prices have gone into effect limiting the amount of candy and sweet cakes."

Beginning Feb. 26, 1916, a community supervision of potatoes was demanded, the idea being that the community, city, village, or town must be responsible for its citizens until the new harvest. They must take over all stores of potatoes, and if the supply will not be equal to the needs they can obtain potatoes from the potato fields and the potato stores.

Rossmann, in his speech in the Abgeordnetenhaus, demanded the same treatment for butter and meat—complete governmental control and a syndicate to supply all retailers.

Butter and Meat Cards Used.

At present both butter and meat cards are used in many of the big cities. The meat card calls for two pounds of meat or one pound of meat and one pound of fat a week a person.

The Berlin butter card going into force March 1 allows a quarter of a pound of butter a week to each person, and if this is not supplemented by some other kind of fat it is decidedly insufficient for the health of a workman.

The butter question is a hard one to settle. In peace times Germany imported butter worth about $30,000,000 and nearly $5,000,000 worth of cream, of which a third is used for butter. Russia and Finland supplied over half of this and Holland a third. On account of the floods in Holland and also the increased price of cheese, which has led to a large cheese industry, little butter or milk comes into Germany.

I might add here, however, that on account of these same floods and the difficulty of pasturing the cattle in Holland Germany was able to buy a large number of animals at a low price.

Get Cattle from Bulgaria.

At the same time several thousand living head came through from Bulgaria and all taxes were taken off cows for breeding purposes from Denmark, so it would look as if the meat problem were going to be ameliorated.

Living is certainly more expensive than it was this time last year, but with the regulation of prices and division of supplies, I do not think it costs as much to live in Berlin as it does in Paris or London.

The official comparison of prices between Feb. 12, 1916, and Feb. 3, 1915, follows:

In the Riga district there has been the usual rifle firing, with raids by skirmishers. A German armored motorcar, which tried to bombard our trenches, was driven off by our artillery.

During the campaign in the Dvinsk district we observed the explosion of our shells among the enemy batteries and German detachments which attempted to approach the villa of Borokovits.

In the Jaenabetski sector the Germans bombarded the district around Neuseburg station. Near Tosenfeld and on the Dvinsk front lively artillery, rifle, and grenade actions have occurred.

Gallies—in the region to the south-east of Riga and the middle Dvinsk we fought several successful engagements with enemy patrol detachments. In the course of which we captured an entire field post, consisting of thirty men.

NOT AFTER THE WEST INDIES.

COPENHAGEN, via London, March 13.—The Danish foreign office denies the rumor that Germany has offered $20,000,000 for the Danish West Indies. The American minister, Dr. Maurice Egan, also has taken occasion to say that there is not the slightest foundation in this report.

Montenegrin Refugees Coming.

Our aviators today displayed remarkable activity in the whole Verdun region. A squadron composed of six aeroplanes dropped 130 shells on the Imperial station at Briouville.

A large number of engagements were fought in which we had an incontestable advantage. Three German aeroplanes were brought down, one of them in our lines and the other two inside the first German lines.

Other aeroplanes were observed in the act of falling, but their destruction has not been established.

French aviators last night threw thirty shells of large caliber at the railroad station of Conflans. Flares were seen breaking out at five different points. All the French aeroplanes succeeded in getting back.

Germania Win Air Fights.

This Is a True Story About Smokeless Down Draft House Heating Boilers

Manufacturers have made a good many statements to get the prospective buyers interested. But before you buy any Smokeless Heating Boiler, ask the manufacturers to tell you these facts:

1—What is the principle of Down Draft Construction?

2—If the secret is to take air down through the burning fuel and keep it going in contact with the hot surfaces, why do they bring these splendid heat giving gases in contact with a set of coal grates at the bottom of the boiler? These grates at the bottom of the boiler tend to chill the gases. Smoke is therefore always produced.

3—A smokeless Down Draft Boiler needs stoking much oftener than the ordinary type of Up Draft Boiler. Then how can a Smokeless Boiler be stoked evenly unless a slicing bar is used every so often? Huge volumes of smoke escape—red, unburned coals drop down from the water grate, which are all waste. How can you prevent this?

We say by using—

RICHARDSON

Down Draft SMOKELESS BOILERS

They have shaking grates instead of a slicing bar—absolute uniform stoking therefore takes place, and only dead burned coals fall through to the bottom of the boiler. But in case there should be any heat left in these coals they fall on a water way at the bottom of the boiler. Not a cold set of grates, like others.

We do not need to prove these statements—you can see these money saving, fuel saving advantages in RICHARDSON Down Draft Smokeless Boilers at our sales rooms.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S HEAD AND FACE

Started With Little Pimples. Spread All Over Her Face, Head and Neck and Got Real Sores.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little daughter had a bad case of eczema on her head and face when she was five months old. She took it with her to her little bed, and it started from there and spread all over her face, head and neck. They got real sores and she would scratch as they would itch but so much. She was terribly cross and fretful."

"While it lasted, her face was disfigured. She could not sleep or eat and I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I started with just a few small sores and it relieved her so I purchased more and about two months after she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Alice Witharger, R. F. D. 4, Alliance, Ohio, July 28, 1915.

BY KITTY KELLY.

T was my lot yesterday to see three long, elaborate features, expensive in time and money, none of which made any distinctive mental impression. All lay on the common level, or maybe in the hollow, of plain mediocrity. Each had some special virtue, but none of them carried a niche in one's mental consciousness.

There is "The Blindness of Love," an excellent idea—very closely related, by the way, to Henry Kolker's last season's success, "Our Children"—presenting a good problem and a welcome relief from the usual type of picture. But common sense, was the fairy missing at the filming of this subject, and so it hangs free on the score of lack of reality. It is so rich a theme, and the world is so full of examples of parental neglect that there is opportunity for tremendously effective accomplishment here.

"The Hunted Woman"—which happened to be on the Ziegfeld screen when I was there—is the product of James Crumwell's indefatigable mind, which is propelling a novelized version of the same tale but from the printing presses now. Here lovely locations, and, recorded by splendid photography, but the players of the old triangle tale don't clutch one's sympathy, and so many of the conventional things in plot and presentation occur as to commensurate the story.

"Misty River" is once more present, as the all-around efficiency expert at an amusement enterprise where he has many jobs with boyish cheerfulness. He isn't quite so funny as he has been in some of his capers, yet his dominating quality of youthful mischief gets over.

The third feature, "One Day"—which is patently made to pander to the semi-sensational, being billed with sensational posters and advertised as all kinds of a love story—Elmer Glyn's sequel to her "Three Weeks" was presented with all the trappings of a love story, but the matter of the story is lost, quite as well as the heartiness of its book atmosphere, thus resulting in a much more wholesome photograph than novel.

Lovely localities, and good scenery abound. The Moss company shows capability for good workmanship, but it is lacking in its subject choice. The best picture isn't looking for the audience, but it is not going to follow the flag, an ambition to be forgiven, also, by the salacious seeking public when it discovers

Get a Good Corset.

Antoinette Donnelly

M all probability, just about this time you are planning for your new spring suit. If so, I hope you haven't forgotten to make allowance for the purchase of a good corset. The success of your Easter outfit will depend more upon this one article than the average woman realizes; that is, if her proportions are in any way nonsensical.

Every woman knows that one of the most important points in feminine fashion of today is the right silhouette. We all know that the change of corset has completely altered the feminine outline. But I do not think that every girl actually realizes the value of the corset that is cut on the present hygienic and sensible lines.

In the first place, even the most rabid hygienist cannot condemn the corset of today. There may be a corset of the past, but she is a comparatively rare specimen. And I would like to say of the wrap waist fadist, if she has any weight to speak of, by compressing her waist this way she succeeds only in making her figure uglier instead of more attractive. The extra flesh must go somewhere, and it usually bulges out above the corset, making a gross and ugly line about the breasts at the back and under the arms and accentuating the size of the bust.

Even the most awkward figure can be improved by wearing the right kind of corset. I do not think too much attention can be paid to this subject, and I advise every girl never to rest content and to spare no trouble until she finds the type of corset that best suits the requirements of her own figure.

It is a debatable question whether it is better to buy a good ready-made corset out on scientific lines or to have one made to order. You can decide that only for yourself. If you can arrive at a good outline with the ready-made article, then it is to be recommended. If you have difficulty in being fitted with a ready-made corset, then I advise you having one made to order.

But don't think of spending all your Easter outfit money on your hat and to the neglect of the most important item, your corset.

Antoinette Donnelly's Answers.

QUESTIONS: You should measure your bust without shoes. From the example of your hair sent me I should say it is golden brown. A girl of your type—golden brown hair and grayish blue eyes—can wear a black, white, dark brown (not golden brown), old blue and pastel tints, dull as well as dark shades of green, pale gray, halitopale, pale blue yellow, and palest pink. You did not tell me your age, consequently I cannot tell you how much you should weigh.

CAROLYN: I am sorry, Carolyn, but there is nothing that will give a reddish tint to your hair or change its color in any way, except a dye, and I do not approve of dyes or bleaches of any sort, and consequently cannot recommend any. I should advise you to do anything to your hair except to take the best of care of it. After hair has been dyed it is to serve the same and usually gets coarser and brittle. I have a formula for a shampoo which will bring out the pretty tint in your hair. It is not a bleach and will not harm your hair in any way.

MR. PROBY: P. Gray hair must be treated with great care in order to preserve its silvery whiteness. It should never be wet, except when it is shampooed. I suggest for this reason that you use crimping pins instead of clips and combs. You can make your hair pretty and wavy and thus reveal the new color when you shampoo your hair.

When you shampoo your hair, wash a few drops of bluing to the rinse water.

SPRING TREATMENT OF PLANTS THAT HAVE BEEN WINTERED IN THE CELLAR.

PLANTS that have been wintered in the cellar should be brought to the light this month and started into growth. Pansies should be cut back at least half. Thin out all the weak branches and shorten the larger ones. This will keep the old plants stumpy, unattractive specimens, but in a short time new branches will start, and by the beginning of summer your plants will have renewed themselves and taken the much wiser that they will be far more satisfactory than young ones produced from the cellar for summer flowering.

The fuchsia is really a summer flowering plant, though the impression seems to prevail that if given the right kind of treatment it will bloom in winter. Not a fuchsia can be forced to bloom in winter. It can be forced to bloom in summer, but it is not a winter flower.

When started into new growth in spring it should be given a rich soil and liberal supply of water. On an average it should be allowed to get dry at the bottom. If this happens it will shed its leaves.

There is no reason why they should receive places in the window in winter. The condition of real winter bloomers, as they will refuse to bloom there in spite of all encouraging treatment that you may give them.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, just in New York from his California Macbething, is full of enthusiasm for the art of photography. Said he in an interview—for a daily, not a motion picture paper: "I return to New York impressed. Really, I have never seen anything quite so marvelous as California. We staged Macbeth as never Macbeth was staged—real battle at night; real castles on the mountain side; real meat and drawbridge and water beneath the drawbridge. The hugeness of it! The splendor of it! I shall return to California in June to resume my Shakespearean roles before the camera."

"Were I a millionaire I should devote all my time to the wonderful cinematographic studies. The great artists and painters should create material for the cinematograph camera, for they have the vast opportunity for realism and beauty. All they lack is the possibility of color blending and tones, and that will come."

"The Innocuousness of the matter behind the flaming posters. The most impressively impressive here I have ever seen herding couples the line light. Even the camera's proximity doesn't stir him."

Lovely localities, and good scenery abound. The Moss company shows capability for good workmanship, but it is lacking in its subject choice. The best picture isn't looking for the audience, but it is not going to follow the flag, an ambition to be forgiven, also, by the salacious seeking public when it discovers

"The Hunted Woman"—which happened to be on the Ziegfeld screen when I was there—is the product of James Crumwell's indefatigable mind, which is propelling a novelized version of the same tale but from the printing presses now. Here lovely locations, and, recorded by splendid photography, but the players of the old triangle tale don't clutch one's sympathy, and so many of the conventional things in plot and presentation occur as to commensurate the story."

"Misty River" is once more present, as the all-around efficiency expert at an amusement enterprise where he has many jobs with boyish cheerfulness. He isn't quite so funny as he has been in some of his capers, yet his dominating quality of youthful mischief gets over."

MUSIC and the MUSICIANS

Cisneros Dazes Vaudeville Fans.

BY ERIC DE LAMATER.

RECENTLY, Mr. Hammond invited me to the Majestic theater last evening to consider the ways of Mrs. Cisneros de Cisneros among the vaudevilleans. I went apprehensively, but when Mrs. Stella Archer sobbed "It's all over!" I was not alone.

Yet several things were puzzling—my friend, Eduardo Cisneros's missing a passage in the accompaniment of one of Mrs. de Cisneros's songs; the sight of a left handed orchestra director with the musical tablet; and the reason for my enjoyment of Morton and Moore.

Mrs. de Cisneros's ways among the vaudevilleans were rather odd ways. Her singing of the "Carmen" Habeneros, of Tosti's "Good-bye," and Gilbert Spross' "Will of the Wisp" seemed to fascinate her, but the sight of the American flag she waved chanting our national anthem to a dutifully risen audience, was known procedure. The formula called for applause, and applause was forthcoming. The flag was a happy thought.

Without doubt, I shall be surprised by the reviewers' fraternity for laughing at Morton and Moore. That there was no intention of so doing will not be sufficient excuse, of course, and I suppose that I should have laughed at "A Regular Army Man," the absurd musical comedy by Channing Pollock, Renold Wolf, and Clifton Crawford, and played busily with Victor Morley in the exact center of the stage whenever possible. I didn't want to laugh at the funny lines, and the singing of the men's choir was too good for much response.

In one point I have the laugh on the early departed, licensed reviewers. I stayed late enough to hear Dr. Gaudier sing an old time Italian opera favorite (the title dodges around the corners of memory) better than I've ever heard anything sung in vaudeville—and in some grand opera.

It wouldn't have been good form to gush during the performance of "The Death of George Locks," for the program said that it was an intensely human, dramatic episode. Furthermore, Mr. Ashton Stevens told me that Claude Gillingwater, the star, held tightly to the highest ideals of ACTING.

Bert Stanwood, an excellent comedian, was talking comedian, doesn't, but neither did I laugh at him. The painter, Philbrick told me he was funny, too.

Further recollections there are none, excepting that Moran and Wiser turned hats about, and Moore and Hanger sang and danced in the classic styles of variety.

A Orchestra hall, on Sunday Harry Weisbach, concert master of the symphony orchestra, held forth with a program of middle classics and a novelty in Jules Conus' E minor concerto. The latter half of Schumann's D minor sonata, violin and piano (played) excellently as to the piano part by Lisa van Groenou, Bach's E minor suite, and the first portion of the Conus concerto gave varied revelation of Mr. Weisbach's gifts.

Mr. Weisbach's program was presented in good style. Mindful of previous comments on his concert, he strove for big effects, and, with the Schumann sonata, especially, he achieved them. The work, not inexplicably unfamiliar, was read with considerable eloquence. The Bach suite, polished, technically commendable, and in good style, nevertheless seemed to lack the depth of feeling, and the fervor of interpretation it demands. What was heard of the Conus concerto exploited the virtuosic element of Mr. Weisbach's talents to good advantage. The one blemish on the playing was the occasional forcing of tone, due, no doubt, to Mr. Weisbach's striving for breadth.

My niece was left alone with the baby for the first time while my sister was to the store. Her mother had cautioned her not to open the door for any one. She no sooner had gone when my father rang the bell. Elizabeth asked who was there and he said it was grandpa and to open the door. Elizabeth started to the door and then, thinking better of it, said "O, no, that's the way Little Red Riding Hood was fooled."

Mrs. P. K. F.

Louise liked to play tea party with her mother, so she could pour the tea, but she did not like to wash the dishes. One day while playing she said: "Now, mother, I am going to play mother" (so she could pour the tea), and when it was over she said: "I'll be father, now, and read the paper while you wash the dishes." P. H. H.

My tiny niece has a propensity for playing with the telephone, for which she has received many scoldings, but to little avail. Her mother has a crash the other day and called her "Violet, what have you done?" The little miss replied: "I didn't hurt it this time, mother. Just the 'number, please,' came out."

MARRIED THRICE, HER DEATH ADDS A FOURTH NAME

He Is Accused of Taking Life Insurance Money of Third Spouse.

POLICIES CAN'T BE FOUND.

The many loves of Mrs. Martha Vandewarkin led her a tumultuous course while she was alive, but they have precipitated an even more grievous tangle now that she is dead.

Two men who figured in her eventful career were arrested last night, one of them on a charge of taking possession of the dead woman's insurance money.

The accused, George W. Sawyer, 37, a blond, blue-eyed man, 5 feet 7 inches tall, the police to help him straighten out the affair, and intimated that he may insist on an investigation of Mrs. Vandewarlin's death.

The accused is the woman's husband, Philip Vandewarlin of 3128 Wentworth avenue. The others are a divorced husband, Harry N. Sawyer of 1649 W. 1st Avenue, and Alexander McIntosh, 290 West Twenty-sixth street, the "affinity" with whom his left her husband's home less than a year ago, the police say.

Married Three Times.

Vandewarlin represented his wife's third venture in matrimony. When she left him with McIntosh, a boarder at the Vandewarlin home, Sawyer, from whom she had been divorced ten years before, went to live with the two at 4218 Evans avenue, as the story goes.

McIntosh Admits Charge.
McIntosh admitted he had tried to collect on one policy when he was arrested at the Drexel Motor Livery company's garage, 4001 Drexel Boulevard, where he is employed as a car washer. According to the police he was "noncommittal" when asked about the other policy and the furniture. A search for these will be made today.

Vandewaterkin filed a suit for divorce several months ago, but it has not come up for trial.

PRESIDENT OF I. C. REJECTS SOUTH SHORE ORDINANCE.

Markham Calls It Draastic and Conscatory and Wants Delay of Project for "Few Months."

Further delay in carrying out the big south shore parkway and lagoon improvement became inevitable yesterday.

The proposed ordinance submitted by the council committee on harbors.

The ordinance in question was drafted to meet the demand of the secretary of war that the city council must express its approval before he would issue a permit for the project. The aldermen took advantage of the opportunity to prepare a contract ordinance designed to place obligations on the south park board and the city.

"The proposed ordinance," Mr. Markham said in his letter, "is so drastic and onerous that if accepted by the railroad company it would be in the power of the city to force an actual discontin-ance of the railroad's operation."

Mr. Markham suggests two alternatives by which the deadline may be broken. One is to wait till the company submits its plans for a new passenger terminal, which, he says, will be completed in a few months. The other is to draft a new ordinance "restricted to only those things which are necessary to obtain a permit from the secretary of war for the filling in of submerged lands."

$3,166.50 FOR BOY'S TOE
And He Lost Two of Them When

Street Car Ran Over His Foot.

Two toes on the right foot of Carl Harung, 5 years old, were appraised at $3,165.50 each by a jury before Judge Tuohill in the Circuit court yesterday afternoon. The jurors returned a verdict of $3,333 against the Chicago Surface Lines, the boy, who is the son of Paul E. Harung, a north side real estate dealer, lost two toes when he was run over by a street car at Granville avenue and Broadway May 9, 1913, when he was 5 years old.

Kiss to Announce That He's Not a Saloonkeeper, as Stated.

In a police report yesterday concerning an investigation of George Gardner, whose saloon was found open after hours
last Sunday, the inference was given that as owner of the saloon is George Gardner, the former boxer.

"I am not in the saloon business," said
George Gardner. "I am in the mineral water business." There is quite a valuable difference.

The mixup in names is hereby corrected.

COUNTY BOARD TRIES TO DODGE DOCTOR'S CHARGE

Night Warden Says Antiquated Contagion Facilities Are Cause of Death.

The board of county commissioners yesterday made earnest endeavor to absolve itself from all blame in connection with the death of 6-year-old Edward Hyman, who used to reside at 588 East 37th street and who died of infection contracted in the county contagious disease hospital.

The board's defense consisted chiefly of cross examination of Dr. Roger T. Vaughan, night warden of the county hospital, who had told the board that the death from cross infection in the contagious disease hospital could not be prevented under present conditions, since the hospital's present building is "fifteen years behind the times."

"I Told the Truth"

"Do you think you were fair to our superior, Warden Smith, when you gave out an interview which might be misconstrued as a reflection on him?" asked Assistant State's Attorney General Case Jr., who examined all the witnesses, apparently with the intent of proving that cross infection cannot be prevented save by "providing every patient with a separate room and a separate nurse."

"I told the truth, which was no reflection on the warden, but a statement of the building's defects," Dr. Vaughan answered.

"Are you doing medical work for the county or are you filling a newspaper position?" asked Commissioner Carlson.

Dr. Vaughan's teeth bared. He bent down to Carlson, sitting next to the witness, put his face within six inches of Carlson's, and asked, with a sort of bitter sweetness:

"Do you think that's a fair question? Don't you think that's perfectly obvious?"

No comeback.

Carlson made no answer. Everybody in the room save the members of the board laughed.

Dr. Vaughan declared that last year there had been at the contagious disease hospital 100 cases of cross infection. During the same time, he said, three or four cases of cross infection had developed at the Durand Memorial hospital.

"Seven per cent of all patients developed other diseases than their original ones at the county hospital," he said, "while less than 1 per cent did so at the Durand."

The Hyman boy was admitted to the county hospital on Feb. 15 as a scarlet fever patient. Subsequently he contracted measles and, it is believed, diphtheria.

Advocate New System.

Dr. Vaughan advocated the unit or cubical system. He said there should be no more than two or three patients in a room or a glass partitioned section shut off from the rest of a large ward. If cross infections develop in these small rooms, he said, only one or two patients would be affected.

Overcrowding exists at present, he said. He told the commissioners that it was their duty or the city's duty to take care of the sick and to provide adequate facilities.

TWO CONVICTS TESTIFY AGAINST WARDEN OSBORNE

Trial of Former Sing Sing Prison Head Brings Out Evidence on Alleged Immoral Conditions.

White Plains, N. Y., March 13.—Testimony designed to show that Thomas Mott Osborne had full knowledge of alleged immoral conditions existing at Sing Sing prison while he was warden there was brought out by the prosecution at the trial of Osborne, which began here today.

William Willett Jr., a former congressman who was imprisoned in Sing Sing for buying a Supreme court judgeship nomination in Queens county, and James Harvey, also a prison inmate, were the principal witnesses against Osborne.

The indictment against the former warden, charging perjury, is based on his testimony last October before Dr. Rudolph Dilling, a state prison commissioner, who conducted an investigation at Sing Sing. Osborne testified before Dr. Dilling that "there is no immorality so far as the prison is concerned."

Willett said Osborne told the prosecutors he would go to prison himself before he would disclose what he knew of their cases.

High Cost of Management.

It was expensive for Fred Elgier, 1901 Cleveland avenue, to be the kind of a dance to Mrs. Louise Ellis, 448 West 42nd street, who is employed in a grocery, appeared against Elgier in Judge La Rue's court yesterday and said that during their engagement she had given him $145, bought him two pairs of shoes, and that he had paid her $145 and engaged him. Also he had written her some threatening notes, Elgier was said.

Disappointing receipts gave the cattle market at Chicago yesterday a buoyant undertone and sales were made at firm to 15c higher prices, but lower values were recorded in other branches of the live stock trade. Cattle receipts were posted at 14,000 head. Best, heavy, fat beefs sold up to $9.95 and the bulk of the steers made $8.40-9.50. The percentage of butchering stock at $8.00 was small. Cows and heifers advanced 10c-15c with steers, while feed and stock cattle sold at new high prices for the season. Calves were of inferior quality and sold on a weak market.

Hogs opened steady, but developed weakness as the season progressed and closed 10c-15c lower. Receipts were posted at 53,000, of which shippers took 10,000. Best sales were made at $10.00-10.25, while the bulk ranged from $9.75-9.90. Leading packers continued bullish and fought against prices, but holders were slow to make concessions and a large number of hogs was locked up to be carried over for later in the week.

Sheep and Lambs Weaker.

Sheep and lambs sold unchanged to 25c lower on receipts of 17,000 head. Shippers paid up to $11.00 for fancy, light weight lambs, while prime fat ewes sold at $8.25 to shippers and packers. These were fully steady. Yearlings topped at $10.10, while prime wethers were held at $8.75.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

Big war order business was the motive for buying and the advance in prices in the market. For the day those who had been accustomed to a bearish attitude toward a broader range of buying, and were influenced to take a somewhat different view of the outlook. Meanwhile it was common sense to take a somewhat different view of the outlook. Meanwhile it was common sense to take a somewhat different view of the outlook. Meanwhile it was common sense to take a somewhat different view of the outlook.

The copper market displayed renewed strength as the result of higher active inquiry from large domestic users. The Mexican situation is thought to have influenced this demand. There is comparatively little foreign buying at the moment, though it is expected there will be a resumption of buying within the next few days. Prices are firm at 27 1/2 cents for June and July, 27 1/2 cents for August, and 28 1/2 cents for any spot copper obtainable.

The demand for steel is reported to continue brisk, and some manufacturers would welcome cancellation of foreign orders in order to supply domestic consumers. One producer believes the unfilled tonnage of the steel corporation may reach 100,000 tons before there is a recession. Premiums in the face of firm prices are being paid ranging from 85 to 90 cents a ton. Necessarily such premiums will disappear prior to any revision in current quotations.

Bethlehem Steel advanced from an opening at 48 1/2 to 49 1/2. In connection with the strength in the stock it was rumored that negotiations were on for additional large war orders and that representatives of the company were on their way to confer with the British authorities. It is asserted the company will have completed its present war contracts within the next seven months.

It is announced that the General Electric company has made a horizontal advance of 10 per cent in electrical goods. In some lines the capacity of the company's plants is booked six and eight months ahead. The Westinghouse Electric has also made price advances which amount about to the same percentage as that of the General Electric.

Studebaker company had a sharp advance, moving from 129 to 140 1/2. This issue has been one of the wobbly ones, and is presumed to have had a great many small speculators in it. The rise in the shares was considered evidence of the completion of considerable liquidation.

The Bank of England reported the amount of currency notes outstanding at £400,487,365, against £395,074,904 last week. The amount of gold held for the redemption of such notes remains at £28,560,000.

New Director First National. Joseph H. Oliver, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, has been elected a director of the First National Bank of Chicago.

Money and Exchange. Money rates in Chicago steady at 1/4 per cent on call, 3/4 per cent on commercial paper, and 4 1/2 per cent on the counter. New York exchange sold at 150 discount. Chicago bank clearings were $58,510,172.

Southern Pacific and Mexico. Developments in connection with Mexican operations have been reported to have stirred active interest among large investors in connection with Southern Pacific equities, which have been estimated to be worth in Mexico alone as much as $50,000,000.

It is also noteworthy that a motion picture company has been organized in connection with the disposition of Pacific Mail in the not distant future, while more remote is the prospect that it forced by the government to segregate the Central Pacific company probably will make a big drive to the stockholders. It is understood that the temporary closing of the Panama canal has been of special benefit to the company through traffic diverted to its route.

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, March 13.—The stock market opened the week with a good tone. There was a fairly active demand for Argentine rails, which closed strong. Some specialties and the South African and Russian mining groups received attention, while Japanese bonds were weaker. The Mexican situation caused a decline in Mexican issues and a reaction in the Argentine situation. The market was quiet on the day, with about 1,000,000 shares of stock being traded. Money ruled at 4 1/2 per cent. Discount rates, short bills and three months' paper were 4 1/2 per cent.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The market for coffee was quiet today, with May and July contracts making new highs for the season on reports of a slightly better crop in the Americas. The market was quiet on the day, with about 1,000,000 shares of stock being traded. Money ruled at 4 1/2 per cent. Discount rates, short bills and three months' paper were 4 1/2 per cent.

THIS bank is justly known as a conservative institution, valued as such by its friends and depositors. But that is not an exclusive characteristic. In its facilities it is distinctly progressive; in its service it is distinctly helpful.
